Foreword

Research has shown that between 75% and 89% of care home residents have dementia, and that many of these residents are undiagnosed (Lithgow, Jackson, & Browne, 2012; Stewart et al., 2014).

A dementia diagnosis will aid the understanding of care workers, family members and friends, leading to better support of the person with dementia. It can lead to more appropriate care and support, may give the person with dementia the opportunity to plan for the future and depending on the type and stage of dementia specific treatments or interventions may be available.

Co-designed by the Health Innovation Network, the Dementia Assessment Referral to GP tool (DeAR-GP) supports care workers to identify people who are showing signs of dementia and refer them to their GP or another healthcare professional for review. Once completed, DeAR-GP acts as a communication aide between care workers and GPs.

This user guide provides a step-by-step process of how to implement DeAR-GP in care homes in your local area. Drawing on experience gained in a small scale pilot, a number of resources and step-by-step guides are provided.

We thank you for your interest and support in further evaluation of DeAR-GP.

“We know that missed diagnoses in care homes are a major reason why diagnosis rates are low in some areas. The Health Innovation Network’s ‘DeAR-GP’ empowers care workers to identify care home residents living with memory problems for review by their GP.”

Evaluation and data sharing

The DeAR-GP tool has been developed by the South London Health Innovation Network and tested in three care homes in south London.

The results were very positive and suggested that the tool is likely to be a good indicator of a dementia diagnosis. We recognise that the test was done on a small scale, and we are keen to obtain further information about how it is being used to support a more robust evaluation.

Although the DeAR-GP tool is being provided at no charge, a condition of its use is that data is reported back to the Health Innovation Network during 2015/16.

To assist with this, a reporting tool has been included in this user guide, available here.

Please email your results to the Health Innovation Network on a quarterly basis, clearly labelling the email 'DeAR-GP results'.

As a minimum dataset, we ask that you tell us:

Your location (borough or CCG)

Number of care homes involved

Number of DeAR-GP forms completed

Number of residents followed up by a GP or other Healthcare professional

Number of residents subsequently diagnosed with dementia

If you are able to provide any other supporting information, such as feedback from care workers/GPs etc. please do so.

If you would like to discuss anything regarding evaluation or data collection please email the Health Innovation Network on by clicking here.
